CHANGE OF STATUS THROUGH THE ELECTRONIC IMMIGRATION SYSTEM (ELIS)

All requests for change of status while in the United States by any alien or foreign national require an application to the office of the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS). An International Services Specialist will help you with filing and preparing the application. If you have maintained lawful nonimmigrant status, you may apply for a change of status. If you are an M-1, C,D, K, J-1 physician, J-1 subject to the 2-year home return visa holders, or a WT & WB visitor, you are not eligible for a change of status within the United States.

May I begin attending classes before my application has been approved?

All applicants may be able to begin attending class after their change of status application has been submitted and while waiting for approval, except for individuals who have entered the United States on a B-1, B-2, or F-2 visa. Also, individuals who have entered with a WT or WB visa waiver from a waiver country are not eligible to being attending classes. It is strongly recommended that all other visa holders consult with an immigration attorney to verify their eligibility to enroll in classes while their change of status is pending.

May I begin campus employment such as an assistantship while waiting for the change of status approval?

No. If eligible (see above), you may only attend classes full-time while your application is pending,

What happens if my application is denied?

If the application is denied, students may be required to leave the US on short notice, interrupting their program of study at an inconvenient or academically disadvantageous time. If students have maintained their previous visa status, they may be allowed to continue to reside in the U.S. as their previous visa status.

Can I travel while my application for change of status is pending?

No. Leaving the U.S. while an application for change of status is pending is considered an abandonment of petition. Contact your International Advisor for your options if you must travel out of the U.S. during this period.

Remember: When you change your status in the United States, your visa in your passport does not change. Visas may only be obtained outside the United Status at a U.S. embassy or consulate. If you status is changed to F-2 and you depart the United States, you must obtain an F-1 visa from a U.S. embassy or consulate outside the United States before re-entering the United States.
