Overview

Southern Methodist University strives to reasonably accommodate the needs of persons with disabilities, including during emergency situations. Emergencies may pose a variety of challenges to persons with mobility, visual, hearing, or mental impairments. The following instructions are intended to provide guidelines for emergency procedures to assist the University and the individual in developing an emergency plan. Ultimately, it is each person’s responsibility to prepare for an emergency. All faculty, staff, and students should become familiar with the facilities that they occupy and develop a plan for emergencies. This document supplements information presented in SMU’s Emergency Management Plan.

Considerations

Elevators cannot be used safely to exit a facility during an emergency and are typically programmed to cease operating when a fire alarm is activated. Persons who rely on the use of elevators must realize that during emergency situations the elevators cannot be used and should develop an alternative plan for leaving the building. Persons with disabilities may require special assistance, particularly when using stairways to evacuate.

Buddy-Up for Safety

A “buddy system” may be instituted by identifying several volunteers to assist the individual during an evacuation. Developing and practicing emergency plans will help minimize confusion and stress. All faculty, staff, and students should participate in University emergency drills.

Arrangements for Assistance

Arrangements for evacuation assistance should be made before an emergency occurs. All facilities on campus have been assigned a Building Manager responsible for informing and organizing building occupants to take appropriate action during an emergency. Evacuation chairs are available through the SMU Police Department. Persons with disabilities who require assistance to evacuate a building during an emergency should contact the facility’s Building Manager as soon as possible to make their needs known.

Students should notify their professors or contact Disability Accommodations and Success Strategies for assistance during classes. Faculty should work with the student and the Building Manager to formulate an emergency plan. Students who reside on campus should inform the residential life staff to make individualized arrangements if needed.

If individuals self-identify and voluntarily disclose medical information, it will be kept confidential and be shared only on a need-to-know basis with safety personnel.

Practice Makes Perfect – Be sure to participate in all drills!
