Blog guidelines and information:

- The blog is set up with categories to make it easier for you to find specific articles of interest.
- You are welcome to post comments to the articles. The blog is more useful with your input.
- If you have a specific question about the Infinity Project, please contact us at infinity@infinity-project.org for tech questions, or ipmail@infinity-project.org for general questions. If a question appears to have universal value, an article may be added to the blog addressing the issue.
- If you have suggestions for blog articles, your class has been covered in the news media, or you have pictures and/or stories regarding exciting activities your class has completed, email them to ipmail@infinity-project.org for possible future blog articles.
- This blog has been set up to give Infinity Project instructors the opportunity to share ideas, experiences, and to network. A moderator will monitor comments, but questions specifically directed at the Infinity Project Team will not be addressed here. Such questions are better directed to infinity@infinity-project.org for technical support questions or ipmail@infinity-project.org for general questions.

If you have any problems accessing the blog, do not hesitate to send an email to infinity@infinity-project.org or call us at 214-768-4038.

Thank you,

The Infinity Project Staff
