ANNOUNCING THE FIRST ANNUAL SAMUEL WESLEY BAD POETRY CONTEST

Deadline to Enter is Friday, April 19

PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED IN THREE DIFFERENT CATEGORIES:

- Cleverest bad title
- Most sincere, yet ghastly, sonnet
- Most faithful adaptation of Samuel's voice

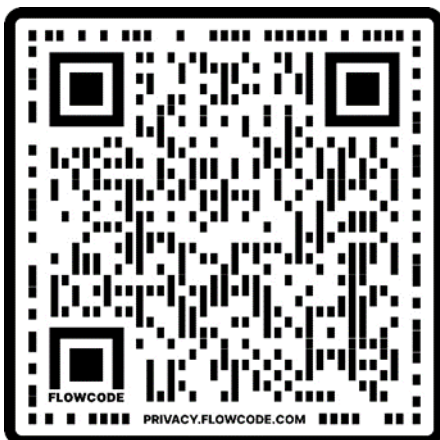

Winners announced on the anniversary of Samuel's death:
April 25.

SAMUEL WESLEY, father of John and Charles, is credited by many resources as a clergyman, writer, and poet. Indeed, he published his first volume of poetry in 1685 following his graduation from Oxford University. What many people fail to mention about Samuel, however, is just how awful a poet he was. His book, entitled Maggots: or, Poems on Several Subjects Never Before Handled, contains such captivating poems as "On a Supper of Stinking Ducks," and "A Tame Snake Left in a Box of Bran Was Devoured by a Mouse after a Great Battle." Contestants wishing to refer to Wesley's work will find online copies through the ProQuest One Literature Database or Early English Books Online.

The winning entries will be exhibited in Bridwell Library, alongside the first edition of Maggots, between May and September, 2024. They will also be preserved in Bridwell Library's Samuel Wesley Bad Poetry Archive and may be published at a later date.

FOURTH ANNUAL EDIBLE BOOK FESTIVAL THURSDAY, APRIL 25

And if that were not enough bibliographic silliness, we are also hosting on the same date the FOURTH ANNUAL BRIDWELL EDIBLE BOOK FESTIVAL!

ARCHETYPES AT WORK

Do you want to know why your congregation functions or leans more toward dysfunction?

Join this CHAP on “Archetypal Psychology,” a theory uncovering patterns within individuals and cultures “running the show” — visibly or invisibly. In this introduction to Archetypes at Work™, you begin to assess the positions of your ten personal archetypes.

Archetypes at Work™ makes these patterns conscious. Once we identify our current ranking of the roles, we can see where we are on the continuum of

Too Much – Optimal – Too Little. At the center of this model are Five Realms:
Order, Relationship, Creativity, Change and Action.

To be effective, we want to be agile in all five of these essential realms of personality, relationships, and leadership. The Realm of Order is about how we organize our life and business; the Realm of Relationship is about how we engage with others; Creativity is about how we initiate the new; Change is about how we manage transitions;
Action is about how we get things done.

Our Speaker is Heather Carlile, MA, LPC-S, who is a Guild Member for this cutting edge international transformational system. She is also a psychotherapist, trainer and educator.

She has been implementing archetypes in mentoring people for over 30 years.
