

Gregg Engles is Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Dean Foods Company, one of the leading food and beverage companies in the United States. Dean Foods Company and its subsidiaries operate over 100 plants in the U.S. and employ approximately 27,000 people.

Gregg currently serves on the Willis M. Tate Distinguished Lecture Series Board of Directors, as well as on the Boards of Directors for Grocery Manufacturers of America, Children's Medical Center of Dallas and The Hockaday School. He is also a member of the Dartmouth President's Leadership Council, the G100 and the World Presidents' Organization.

Molly Engles, wife and mother, serves on the board of the Notre Dame School of Dallas, is involved with the Junior League of Dallas and the Dartmouth President's Leadership Council. Molly also is active in fundraising for numerous charitable organizations. The Engles have three children, Lily, Kate, and Anna.

Molly and Gregg are in their seventh year of sponsoring Presidents Scholars, and have especially enjoyed getting to know and mentoring these students. As Molly says, "Sponsoring three President's Scholars through the Tate Lecture Series is one of the most rewarding things Gregg and I have done. These exceptional young people are our future. To know them, support their education and sustain a great Dallas institution like the Tate Series is an honor."
