

Real Estate Law Courses

The practice of real estate law is a transactional practice. Attorneys represent property owners, developers, lenders, landlords, and tenants in giving legal advice regarding and in negotiating and drafting contracts for sale, deeds, notes, deeds of trust, leases, easement agreements, declarations of restrictive covenants, and many other types of documents.

Foundation Courses – Introducing the Basic Concepts

Property I and II
Real Estate Transactions
Land Use

Advanced Courses

Commercial Real Estate Transactions Seminar
Advanced Topics in Property Law (EW)

Strongly Recommended Courses

Business Enterprise
Creditors' Rights
Environmental Law
Federal Income Tax
Payment Systems
Secured Transactions
Texas Land Titles
Texas Matrimonial Property Rights
Trusts & Estates

Also Recommended

Construction Law
Corporate and/or Partnership Taxation
Oil and Gas

Clinics

Civil/Consumer Clinic

Externships

Department of Housing and Urban Development

Public Service Placements

Department of Housing and Urban Development
Housing Crisis Center (landlord-tenant)

Faculty

Here are the full-time faculty and professional staff members who teach or have an interest in this area:

Julie Forrester Rogers

Mary Spector

Martin Camp