A Selective Checklist

[Accounting] Pacific Business College. A Treatise on the Science of Accounts Theoretical and Practical, as Taught at the Pacific Business College San Francisco, Cal. [San Francisco]: Published by W.E. Chamberlain and T.A. Robinson, Proprietors of the Institution, 1885. 6th ed. "Pacific Press: Printers, Electrotypers and Binders, Oakland, Cal."

[Accounting] Packard, S.S. Packard's New Manual of Book-Keeping and Correspondence. New York: S.S. Packard, 1888. 10th ed. 158 pp.

[Addresses, essays, lectures, etc.] Humphrey, James. Annual Address of the Kansas State Agricultural College, Commencement, 1883. Manhattan, Kansas: Printing Dept., State Agricultural College, 1883. 8 pp.

Adams, John Quincy. Letters of Hon. John Quincy Adams on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties to Col. William L. Stone, Edward Livingston, and Others. Chicago: Ezra A. Cook, 1875. 130 pp. In addition to freemasonry, ranges across other political topics.

[Advertising Fiction] [Agriculture] Univ. of Illinois. The Story of a King and Queen. No place or date [1910]. [16]pp + wrappers. With five half-tones in text. Apparently the true tale of King Corn and his wife, Queen Clover, who settle in the Midwest, but together the couple begin to deplete the soil, with the Queen becoming sickly and weak. Until they called in Dr. Science who said what they needed was limestone and phosphate. This tale—with statistics on crop production achieved by the royal couple!—was published by the University's Agricultural Experiment Station, as Circular No 145. In a parenthetic aside, Clyde Hopkins of the Station advises parents and teachers "to help their children and pupils to understand the full meaning of this story." Perhaps because it is somewhat obtuse! Plus the sentence structure is often convoluted. This story follows the Station's earlier entry into the field of "inanimate fiction," with Story of Rose and Queen.

[Advertising Fiction] [Beverage] Charles E. Hires Co. The Cruise of the Bee. Philadelphia, ca. 1920. [8]pp including color pictorial wrappers, a little worn along spine. Tale of three girls who strap a box containing Hires Household Extract onto the back of a giant bee and then for a trip around the world, where they introduce many different cultures to Hires Root Beer. "The romantic Spaniards agreed that in Root beer they found a drink which pleased them to perfection, quenching their thirsts and giving them strength and energy."

[Advertising Fiction] [Cleansers] B.T. Babbitt. At Your Service from Cellar to Garret. [NY: Babbitt, 1910] [8]pp. including color lithographed die-cut wrappers by American Lithographic Co. The firm's mascot, the Babbitt Bobbie—a young man in a police outfit, with a scrub-brush in place of revolver—takes the reader on a tour of all the places in a modern home where Babbitt Cleanser could be put to good use. "Babbitt's Cleanser doesn't eat out dirt, it rubs it out." Not located in OCLC.

[Advertising Fiction] [Cleansers] Clorox Chemical Co. Women "Adore" Me. Oakland, CA, ca 1925. 12mo. Five-panel folding flyer, profusely illustrations. Braggadocio from a talking bottle of bleach... "I have no 'Double'"... "I Work Wonders in the Laundry." With a section of 16 postage-stamp size photos with text showing/describing use and wonders of Clorox.

[Advertising Fiction] [Cosmetics] Dorothy Gray. The Story of Dorothy Gray. [New York, 1927.] 12mo. 32pp + pictorial wrappers. A few illustrations. Somewhat fictionalized and romanticized biography... "And as she studied and experimentalized, gradually her life's ambition fixed itself. She would make millions beautiful!" The Story is an opener to pushing the full line of cosmetic plus a treatise on beauty with lots of tips (using Dorothy Gray creams and products).

[Advertising Fiction] [Crayons] American Crayon Co. Around the World with Aunt Millie. Sandusky, OH, 1927. Oblong 8vo. [20]pp including color pictorial wrappers (with text on insides panels, ad on rear). Nice entry in the 'let's fly around the world and discover where the ingredients for our product comes from.' In this case, crayons... and so Bob and Betty hop onto a plane, actually a motorized crayon, and go to such places as India, where the bee's wax originates. Seven of the panels are, naturally, uncolored illustration meant to be colored in using, of course, Prang Crayonex.

[Advertising Fiction] [Electricity] Armored Cable Section, National Electrical Manufacturers Association. Bright Ideas for Ladies, Or What to Teach Husbands About Electric Wiring. New York, 1960. [24]pp including pictorial wrappers. Small cartoon illustrations throughout. Narrator and her husband spend a weekend with a couple who had moved out to the suburbs. While the husbands go fishing, the wives talked A LOT about wiring electricity, much of learned from Helen's electrical contractor. "Somewhere," Helen said, 'I've heard the expression 'overloaded circuit' and never knew what it meant. I'm beginning to see it now.'" The publisher comments that the booklet "is written in a clear, non-technical style that anyone can understand and take pleasure in reading."

[Advertising Fiction] [Furs] A Little Trip to Gammel's. No place or date [NY? ca. 1910.] [8]pp + wrappers with color plate tipped on front. Small vignettes (eight) of store and operation. Woman who had walked past Gammel's Furrier many times finally gathers the courage to walk in and is met by courteous and non-aggressive staff, who show her the entire operation, "I asked to see a Skunk or Black Marten set, and was shown a large muff and shawl collar at $80.00."

[Advertising Fiction] [Health] Lerrigo, Marion O. and Helen Southard. A Story About You. Chicago: American Medical Association, 1962. 43pp + pictorial wrappers. Text illustrations and diagrams throughout. Sex education tract told in the voice of someone explaining to a fictive You just what's up. E.g., "You may wonder how the sperm cell found its way to the egg from which you grew." OR: "If you stop to think about it, you will realize that there are many ways in which your feelings change as you grow up." One of a five different booklets in a series.

[Advertising Fiction] [Margarine] Wm. J. Moxley, Inc. "Certified." The Story of a Country Girl's Visit to Chicago. Chicago, 1913. [16]pp + color pictorial wrappers. Doubting Thomasina from the country doesn't believe her friend that Moxley's Oleomargarine is better than butter. So she goes to Chicago to see for herself and is given a tour of the plant (shown in small vignettes throughout). “I noticed in uniform going around looking at everything, and behind everything and under everything—and I asked who he was. ‘Oh, that’ is the Government Inspector,’ our guide said.” Product packaging on last page—14 different brands of oleo!—and photos of the Moxley Improved Delivery Motor in inside wrappers. OCLC locates two holdings (Hagley & Clements), noting 8pp.

[Advertising Fiction] [Petroleum] American Petroleum Institute. The Curious Case of the Mumbling Maniac. No place, 1940. [12]pp including pictorial wrappers. Odd tale of two policemen reminiscence about an oil salesman they picked up on the street because he was spouting “screwy lingo” about oil change practices and “mumbling a lot about mileage, changes, and when and why.” The cops thereby learn a lot... and you will too! Vignette cartoons throughout. A pre-war effort towards oil conservation.

[Advertising Fiction] [Salesmanship] Retail Shoe Salesmen’s Institute. Jim Parkes Has It Out With The Boss. Guide No. 1. Training Course for Retail Shoe Salesmen [cover title]. Boston, 1920. 11pp + printed wrappers. Jim has worked at the show operation for four years but has not risen high in the ranks... Nor received the salary that he felt was due to him. So he approaches the boss, who gives him the straight dope—he doesn’t study enough. Jim, therefore, changes his attitude, becomes a better retail shoe salesman, and eventually makes the dough he wants.

[Advertising Fiction] [Shoes] Hall, Eugene J. The Story of a Shoe. Chicago: Wilbur Publishing Co., 1888. 12mo. 12pp + pictorial wrappers—wrapper and all text chromolithographed throughout. Elaborately illustrated little fancy in which a man finds an old shoe in the undergrowth... and the shoe proceeds to tell its story... all a pitch for the fine footwear made by Phelps, Dodge & Palmer. Good candidate in the genre of the “inanimate object narrative.”

[Advertising Poetry] [Agricultural Equipment] William Deering & Co. A Future Customer [cover title]. Chicago, ca. 1894. 16mo. [24]pp + chromolithographed wrappers. Illustrated throughout with sepia-toned chromos. Series of small poems, all cheering the Deering line of binders and mowers, with some prose push too. OCLC locates one holding (VA).

[Advertising Poetry] [Appliance] Canadian General Electric Co. The Knight in the White Castle. No place or date, ca. 1925. 4to. 12pp + color pictorial wrappers. Prof. illustrated with dramatic panels (in black, grays, and orange) by “RFH.” Strange poem about a young girl who becomes sick because of rancid food in an old icebox, but then General Electric is summoned and who tells Betty that he is sending his “brave and handsome knight” who lives in a white castle (aka, a GE refrigerator) to her house—that is, sending over a new appliance—and the poem describes how the Knight slays the Dragons of bad food.

[Advertising Poetry] [Auto] Raybestos Co. Mother Goose Nursery Rhymes for Automobile Owners. No place, 1929. 12mo. [12]pp. + color pictorial wrappers. Eight fractured rhymes—with each stanza illustrated by a small red-and-black panel cartoon—each within the poem pushing Raybestos Brakes. “Mary had a little car/ With brakes on all four wheels/ And every time that Mary stops/ the darn thing always squeals.”

[Advertising Poetry] [Banking] New York Savings Bank. Lessons in Saving. Cleveland: Art Dept., ca. 1910. [11]pp + color pictorial wrappers. Color illustrations by “Dean.” Verses on animals who “save”—woodpecker, dormouse, beaver, squirrel, chipmunk, polar bear [saves body fat], honey bee, ant, and hare. So why kids? “Savings Accounts from One Dollar up.”

[Advertising Poetry] [Cleanser] Morse Bros. The Rising Sun & Who He Shines Upon. Canton, MA, ca. 1890. 12mo. [8]pp + chromolithographed wrappers, with view of the Polish Factory on rear wrappers. Eight stanzas, each with an illustration, about women of various countries who use Rising Sun Stove Polish... from America, Britain, France, Germany, Ireland, Scandinavia, Italy, and concluding with a “young lady of color. OCLC notes a copy (naturally) at Brown.

[Advertising Poetry] [Food] Albers Bros. Milling Co. Hello! Little People. [San Francisco, 1902.] Oblong 12mo. [12]pp illustrated + 12 blank tissues + pictorial wrappers. Poem about the ingredients that go into making Carnation Mush. Rear ad addresses the Mothers: “We have tried to please the children by pictures and jingles and to awaken in them an interest in drawing by the use of a rhyming tale of our breakfast foods.” Also to awaken an interest in Mush. Product packaging shown in every illustration. OCLC notes two holdings (Washington, Winterthur).

[Advertising Poetry] [Medicines] Emerson Drug Co. The True Tale of Trilby Tersely Told. Baltimore, 1895. 12mo. [16]pp + decorative wrappers. The tale of Trilby, and the mesmerist Svengali—from George Maurier’s popular novel—told in verse, concluding that the woman could not have been hypnotized if she had consumed some Bromo-Seltzer. Small plug for the novel which is poetically pirated here, printed on the front wrapper. Facing pages with ruled blanks for “Memorandum.” Some ad copy, too. OCLC locates two holdings: Brown & Amherst.

[Advertising Poetry] [Medicines] Merchants & Planters Oil Co. The Major Talks [cover title]. Houston, ca. 1890. Oblong 12mo. [12]pp + color printed wrappers. Lithographed illustrations in blue throughout. Major Burton is sitting with some chums in the club room when he announces “I never have deceived my wife but once since we were wed.” The jovial clubmen gather ‘round “For conversation in a club are of peculiar sort—They rarely hold prayer meetings in a city club resort.” After giving birth, Mrs. Burton was rather weak and instead of serving her butter, the Major served her (unknown to her) M&P Butter Oil, and she got well immediately because of this innocent deception. Ads for the product on every facing page.

[Advertising Poetry] Piso. The World Over. A Cure-ious Tale But True. New York: Designed and Lithographed by Geo. S. Harris & Sons, [188-]. Oblong 12mo. [12]pp + chromolithographed wrappers. Illustrated throughout with blue-tinted lithos. With seven strange verses followed by some testimonials. Verses about the wonders of Piso Cure for Consumption, showing caricatured use by a “dusky Negro,” and Chinese man [“Heap-ee fine thing for a cough”], Jonah and the whale, and a deep-sea diver and a mermaid. OCLC locates one holding (Rochester Med.)

[Advertising Poetry] [Paint] Murphy & Co. Rattle & Prattle No. 2. For Little Carriage Makers, and Young Car Builders. Newark, 1879. Square 8vo. [16]pp + chromolithographed wrappers. Christmas gift book/anthology from varnish maker, with all tales, stories, and poems pushing Varnish in one way or another. Even a sort of ABC for Carriage Makers. Fantastic double-page spread chromolithograph, “Mother Goose Melodies for Children” (e.g., “Tom, Tom the Painters Son/ Bought a Can and Away He Run...” OCLC notes one holding for the 1878 issue (Florida).

[Advertising Poetry] [Soap] N.K. Fairbanks. Fairy Tales. Chicago et al, ca. 1890. [24]pp + pictorial wrappers, light stain on front cover, otherwise fine. Profusely illustrated throughout with color of blue-tinted lithographs. Anthology of Mother Goose rhymes (e.g., Old Lady in the Shoe, Three Little Kittens) and others verse, all perverted at some point to end with singing the praises of FAIRY SOAP. Later followed by a “Second Series” volume.

[Advertising Poetry] [Soap] N.K. Fairbanks Co. Fairy Tales (Second Series). Chicago et al, 1898. [24]pp + embossed pictorial wrappers. Color lithographs (full-page) throughout as well as green-toned lithos surrounding text. Eleven poems which in one way or another feature Fairbanks’ Fairy Soap within the story. All illustrations also depict said bar of soap. Lots of fairies throughout.

[Advertising Poetry] [Soap] Procter & Gamble. Some Facts About Ivory Soap. Cincinnati, ca. 1890. [24]pp including wrappers; soiled with a few tears. Vignette illustration on every page. Poems that force a reference to Ivory Soap (e.g., The Village Blacksmith) sandwiched between testimonials from chemists on the purity of the soap and other promotional prose. OCLC notes three holdings (Rochester Med., Brown, Hagley).

[Advertising Poetry] [Stove] Malleable-Iron-Range Co. “Pray, Mother Goose,” Quoth Monarch Wise, “Wilt Lend Your Rhymes to Advertise My Famous Kitchen Range?” Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, ca. 1920. Six-panel accordion fold 12mo pamphlet—12 panels of illustrated Mother Goose rhymes, perverted in each verse to push Monarch Ranges, which are sometimes shown, too, such as in “Jack Spratt.”

[Advertising Poetry] [Stoves] Rock Island Stove Co. A Novel Race. Rock Island, IL, ca. 1880. Oblong 12mo. [16]pp + color printed wrappers. Profusely illustrated by blue-tinted lithographs, designed (and printed) by George S. Harris of New York. Leonore has a “curious” dream about a race involving various models of kitchen stoves (ridden by small men), with the winner being a Rock Island “Riverside” model. Upon awaking, her husband reveals a surprise in the kitchen. Not located in OCLC.

[Advertising Poetry] [Yeast] Fleischmann’s. Untitled poem about a young girl who decided to surprise her mother by baking a batch of rolls, using Fleischmann’s Yeast. [8]pp + 8ff of tissues. Uncolored illustrations with tissue paper interleaves (for tracing). Unused copy. Color pictorial wrappers. No place, ca. 1890.

[Advertising Sheet Music] [Auto] Becker, Ernest A., Sr. March of the Pioneers. Bristol, CT: Becker, 1929. Standard format, 4pp, last blank; cover illustration of wagon train. Maintaining fraternal spirits in Kansas during the tumultuous decade 1856-1865 was no easy task. The 1856 convocation is warned, "In the present disturbed state of political affairs in our country we are often called on to exercise that charity in construing [sic] the acts of others which our own excesses, when under the influence of a high state of excitement, may often require; beware then, my brothers, that political animosities find no hold among the fraternity: let no political discussions or feeling enter into your Lodges and let all your discussions out of the Lodge be marked by prudence, calmness and caution, remembering that even contending soldiers on the bloody field of battle are sometimes brothers." Other convocations, concerned about "discordance," seek nevertheless to spread education and culture throughout the Territory: "establish common schools in every village, neighborhood and town." The "Mystic Tie" of Masonry "embraces in its folds many brethren of heathen nations in Asia, Africa, America ..."

Koch, Paul Wilhlem, Herzog von Wurtemberg, Herzog Bernhard von Weimar, J. MacGregor, CH. Lyell, F. Wye U.U.M. Sowie nach dem Felsengebirge im Jahre 1842 und nach dem Oregongebiet und Nord-Californien in den Jahren 1843 und 1844 von Capitian J. C. Fremont, Burger der Vereinigten Staaten mit Einem Stahl Stich und Einer Karte.* Leipzig, 1848. 447, [1]pp. Illus., frontis and folding map "Die Vereinigten Staaten von Nordamerika..." by Heinzelmann. Wagner-Camp-Becker 115:12. Howes F370. On p.262 begins "Reisen Nach Dem Felsengebirge..." which deals with the Oregon country and California in 1843-1844. In addition to the German edition of Fremont's classic travel narrative, the volume also includes accounts from several other travelers in the west. The frontispiece depicts the falls in the Pacific Northwest.

[Geology] Breislak, Scipione. Introduzione alla Geologia. Milan: Stamperia Reale, 1811. xxvii, [1], 36, 367, [1] pp.; 490 pp. Two vols. 8vo, orig. marbled wrappers, entirely uncut. First edition. This highly influential work was rapidly translated into French and German and widely circulated. Its criticism of Neptunian dogmas was largely instrumental in eradicating them from the teaching of the universities and colleges. Breislak gives a good account of volcanic phenomena and volcanic rocks in Italy, and contributes a number of valuable observations on gaseous explosions, volcanic ejecta, and on lava and basalt. "Considered one of the founders of volcanology in Italy, Breislak was the first to determine that basaltic rocks were of extrusive origin; he also emphasized that the tufaceous deposits of Campania originated under water, and he reconstructed the evolution of Vesuvius."—D.S.B., II, p. 439. "Second edition, wholly written over anew, and published under the Direction of the Troy Lyceum." Eaton (1776-1842), was an eminent American geologist, botanist, and educator. "Eaton's Index was an important early American geological treatise, and the foldout section of Massachusetts, with its massive granite base, is truly stunning.”—Ashworth & Bradley, Theories of the Earth 1644-1830 (Linda Hall Library: 1984), 50—(describing the first ed. of 1818). D.S.B., IV, pp. 273-75.

[Geology] Robinson, Thomas. An Essay towards a Natural History of Westmorland and Cumberland. Wherein an Account is given of their several Mineral and Surface Productions, with some Directions how to discover Minerals by the External and Adjacent Strata and Upper Covers, &c. To which is Annexed, A Vindication of the Philosophical and Theological Paraphrase of the Mosaick System of the Creation, &c. London: W. Freeman, 1709. 8 p.l., 95 pp.; 1 p. l., 118 pp., one leaf of ads. Two parts in one vol. First edition. Robinson (d. 1719), natural philosopher, took his degree at Christ’s College, Cambridge in 1668 and was soon appointed rector of Ousby, Cumberland. He established a major mining enterprise in 1693 when he reopened the Newlands mines near Keswick with the intention of mining copper and silver. By 1703, the enterprise failed and because of considerable debts, Robinson had to take refuge in London. The present work is divided into two parts. The first describes the geology and mineralogy of Westmorland and Cumberland. Part II present the author’s theory of the earth. Robinson admired the theories of Burnet and Woodward and agreed that God worked through secondary causes in creating the earth. Signature dated 1775 and engraved armorial bookplate of Thomas Dampier (1749-1812), bishop of Ely and prominent book collector. Errata slip mounted on p. 118. [Geology] Woodward, John. An Essay toward a Natural History of the Earth: and Terrestrial Bodies, Especially Minerals: as also of the Sea, Rivers, and Springs. With an Account of the Universal Deluge: and of the Effects that it had upon the Earth. London: R. Wilkin, 1695. Title within ruled border. 8 p. l., 277, [2] pp. 8vo. First edition of this celebrated contribution to the advancement of geological knowledge; it was widely read both in Great Britain and, in translation, in other European countries. Woodward (1665-1728), believed that “the earth formerly had been submerged beneath a universal deluge. . . These waters had dissolved, or disintegrated and held in suspension, all the stony and mineral matter forming the outer crust of the earth. . . From the confused mass that had formed, the matter in suspension, both organic and inorganic, subsided in an order determined, so far as was possible, by the specific gravity of the individual components. Thus a stratigraphic succession was formed.”—D.S.B., XIV, p. 501. This work was criticized by Dr. John Arbuthnot, John Ray, and others. The Essay contributed toward establishing that strata throughout the world are, generally speaking, similar in character, a conclusion necessary before an acceptable theory of the origin of the rocks of the crust of the earth could be formulated. [Horses] Kimberly, A.E. First Annual Catalogue 1890 Union Valley Stock Farm where Highly Bred Trotting Stock are Always for Sale [wrapper title]. [West Liberty, Ia. 1890]. 120, [4]pp., plus illustration. Original printed wrappers. Contemporary manuscript annotations. The first catalogue for A.E. Kimberly's Union Valley Stock Farm, a breeder of trotting horses located in West Liberty, Iowa. Kimberly had established himself as a breeder of short horn cattle before branching into trotting horses. The most prominent stallion in Kimberly's stable was Bezant 6321, depicted in an illustration and whose services were available for $100 for the season, but limited to servicing only ten mares outside of Kimberly's own. The other stallion, Guide 1197, could be had for $50 for the season. The rest of the catalogue lists dozens of mares and colts also available. The manuscript annotations throughout the catalogue indicate that this might have been Kimberly's own reference copy. No copies are located in OCLC.

[Houston, Sam] Letters to Sam Houston, 1855-1856. Mss.

Summary: This collection consists of 89 letters written to Sam Houston from October, 1855, to March, 1856. At the time, Houston was a U.S. Senator from Texas. The letters reveal the wide range of his correspondence, from all over the United States, from complete strangers as well as long-time friends and supporters. The topics run the gamut, from personal and family news to the great political issues of the day, especially the growing tensions concerning slavery, the durability of the Union, and Houston's prospects as a potential presidential candidate. Of special interest are long letters from E.W. Cave in Nacogdoches, the editor of the Nacogdoches Chronicle and a political supporter. Henderson Yoakum, the author of an early history of Texas, declares his pro-Union sentiments and expresses his fears for the future unless reasonable heads prevail. Geographically, the correspondents range from California to New Hampshire. Of the 89 letters, 23 were sent from Texas, many of which contain important observations on agriculture, society, economics, and politics. The variety of topics in this collection makes for interesting reading as well: most everyone wants something—a favor, a pension, a government job, seeds from the patent office, government publications for libraries and private citizens. Houston is often asked to give a speech, or informed that he has been elected to an honorary society, or is the local favorite of the American party.

Five of the correspondents are women. A Mrs. E. Ewing in Houston, Texas, writes of her difficulties with “Awgustus,” probably her slave, who has run away and “is now at Mr. Middleton’s in Washington City.” “If I cannot succeed in getting him in the Navy or on some Merchant vessel that is going on a long voyage I do not know what I am to do with him.” Mrs. Ellen Coleman in Gonzales, Texas, writes to request “fruits, grapevines, cereals & vegetables.” Mary Clarke, the editor of the Mother’s Journal in Philadelphia, writes to obtain a renewal of Mrs. Houston’s subscription to the magazine. “Allow me to express my pleasure at your frank admission that all good husbands are more or less directed by their wives. I sincerely hope that all such, like yourself, may be blessed with good wives.” Henrietta Creecy writes concerning land claims of her late husband. Mrs. DeJamin writes from West Point, N.Y., to complain about her husband’s low salary and their uncomfortable living quarters.

Office seekers abound, but probably none can equal the frank admission of Isaiah Graham of Philadelphia, who desired an appointment as a captain’s clerk on board a man of war. “I have always had a liking for a sea faring life ...”

For students of political history and social history, these letters offer a rare glimpse at the myriad concerns facing Americans on the eve of the Civil War, from the quotidian details of daily life to the larger themes of a democratic government divided over the question of slavery. [Japanese Internment] The Displaced Japanese-Americans [wrapper title]. Washington: American Council on Public Affairs, [1944]. 20 pp. Reprinted from an article in the April 1944 issue of FORTUNE, this pamphlet outlines events surrounding the internment of over 100,000 Japanese-Americans during World War II.

[Japanese Internment] Wada, Yori. Beyond the Horizon [wrapper title]: [Berkeley. 1944]. 12 pp. Original printed self-wrappers. First separate edition, reprinted from the California Monthly of December, 1943 and published by the Committee on American Principles and Fair Play. Yori Wada graduated from the University of California in 1940 and was inducted into the Army in July, 1941, eventually being assigned to the 442nd Combat Team at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, which was composed entirely of Japanese-Americans. His family, however, was relocated to the Hanford internment camp. He writes that "the sale of our ice cream store which had been ours for 25 years had also be borne in bitter shame and silence since the United States Government had wanted it so. We had committed no crime; it was only that Japan, our enemy, was the land of our ancestors." An eloquent testimony by a patriot who, despite the injustices he and his family suffered, maintained his belief in American ideals.

[Japanese Internment] See the Film Challenge to Democracy. Los Angeles: United Co-Operative Industries, [1944]. [2]pp. A scarce flier promoting the short American propaganda film Challenge to Democracy, released in 1944 by the War Relocation Authority. The film is a somber view of Japanese internment that also tries to put a positive spin on the situation.

[Japanese Internment] "What We're Fighting for" Statements by United States Servicemen about Americans of Japanese Descent. Washington: War Relocation Authority, [1944]. 21pp. Prints various letters by American servicemen opposed to the idea of Japanese-American internment: "When I meet a Japanese-American on the street in the same uniform as my own, I know he is fighting two wars, our war and his own private war for his people against public opinion and racial discrimination."

The northern tip of Atlin Lake, the largest lake in British Columbia, is in the Yukon. Includes Canadian mining regulations for the Yukon; Yukon hydraulic mines regulations; and U.S. mining regulations for Alaska. Information also on mining camps; law and order; banking facilities; miners' supplies; modes of transportation; and routes. Not in Peel. OCLC lists a single copy at Simon Fraser University, dated May 24, 1899.

[Lincoln, Abraham] (Garvie, James, translator). Abraham Lincoln Toni Kin, QA Aesop Tawoyake Kin. Life of Abraham Lincoln and Aesop's Fables. Santee Indian Agency, Neb.: A.L. Riggs, Publisher, 1893. 12mo. 17, (1), 10 pp. Original printed wrappers. A Sioux language biography of

Lincoln, "printed by Indian pupils of Santee Normal Training School, Santee Agency, Neb." The translator, Rev. James Garvie, was a missionary to the Sioux; his mother, according to Monaghan, was a member of the Sioux who lived in Minnesota in the Sixties. The second part consists of translations of Aesop's Fables by Jennie Cox and Eunice Kitto. This is the first and only (up to 1939) biography of Lincoln in a Native American language found in Monaghan (Vol. I, 3856 and p. 441, note). Checklist of North and Middle American Indian Linguistics, Dakota 79.

Louisiana: Address of the Louisiana Native American Association, to the Citizens of Louisiana and the Inhabitants of the United States. New Orleans: D. Felt & Co, 1839. 20pp. Original plain wraps. An unusual Know-Nothing Address from the ethnic hodge-podge of Louisiana. The Irish and German infiltration of the country-- "swarms of foreign locusts"-- is especially condemned. The Association's "purpose was the repeal of the naturalization laws that permitted 'hordes and hetacombs of beings in human form- the outcast and offal of society- the vagrant and the convict to be transported in myriads to our shores.'" Eberstadt. First Edition. Jumonville 1068. 111 Eberstadt 335. Sabin 42185. AI 56905.

[Manufacturing] American Snuff Co. Snuff Almanac. Memphis, 1954. 36pp + color pictorial wrappers, with product packaging featuring on inside covers and rear cover. Profusely illustrated almanac with usual miscellany of information (e.g., gospel songs, recipes), but primarily concerned about pushing the line... "A brand for every taste, a size for every purchase"... with page 5-17 showing and describing the whole process for producing snuff such as Peach Sweet Snuff ("Sweet as a Peach") with much modern machinery, and center-spread rendering of "The World's Largest Scotch Snuff Factory." OCLC notes holdings of this issue at Delaware and Western Kentucky.

[Manufacturing] California Fruit Growers Exchange. The Story of California Oranges and Lemons by the Sunkist Growers. Los Angeles, 1932. 32pp + pictorial wrappers. Vignette illustrations throughout. From tree to you, via packaging and transportation processes. Series of questions at the end suggest the educational use of the work. "There is romance in the story; also news—for many people; and a little understandable science. Business men concerned with organization and production, and bankers, orchardists and farmers will be informed by it." OCLC locates two other issues (1926, 1931) both in foreign holdings.

He gives details of the trip, of the Indians on the frontier, the early settlers, and his part in the long parade of events through the Civil War and reconstruction.

[Missouri] [St. Louis] Message of the Mayor of the City of St. Louis, and Reports of City Officers, Delivered to the City Council, May, 1850. Printed by Order of the Board of Delegates. St. Louis: Printed at the Intelligencer Office, 1850. 12pp plus two folding tables.

[with] Mayor's Message, with Accompanying Documents, Submitted to the City Council, of the City of St. Louis, At the Opening of the First Stated Session, May 12, 1851. St. Louis: Missouri Republican Office. 1851. 16pp plus folding table. Printed in two columns per page.

[with] Mayor's Message....At the Opening of the Second Stated Session, October 13, 1851. St. Louis: St. Louis Times Office. 1851.

[with] A Consecutive Run of the Mayor's Messages for the First and Second Sessions of 1852, 1853, 1854, 1855, 1856, 1857, 1858, 1859. St. Louis: 1852-1859. Various paginated, with folding tables, Very Good. A total of 19 separate, consecutive imprints. This collection of Messages reports the growth of St. Louis into an important urban center. The Messages recount the City's progress in developing a sophisticated infrastructure-- wharves, harbors, roads, railroads, sewers, street cleaning, fire safety, and other urban improvements are reported, with charts and tables of activities and expenditures by the Engineer, Comptroller, and other City officers. Imprints Inventory 671 [Missouri].

[Missouri] [Washington] Amended Charter of the Town of Washington, Franklin Co., Mo., Approved March 21st, 1878. Also revised Ordinances of the Town of Washington, and Rules and Orders for the Government of the Mayor & Board of Councilmen. [Nebraska] Burlington Route. South-Western Nebraska and North-Western Kansas. A Brief Description of the Country, Its Products and Resources, Together with a Synopsis of the Homestead, Pre-Emption, and Timber Culture Laws. Lincoln: Journal Company, 1887. 16pp + large folding map laid in. "Map of Nebraska and Eastern Colorado. Published by the Burlington Route. 1887" engraved by F. Hirschfield, 24.5 x 42 inches, with the Railroad route line heavily marked in printed red lines. Good typical immigration plea from a railroad. This pamphlet is a companion piece, as it were, to a similar appeal from the Burlington Route (also in 1887), An Invitation to South-East Nebraska, which we hold.

[Nebraska] Nebraska's Centennial Offering [running headline]. [Philadelphia: Longacre & Company, 1875]. 16pp, including two full-page illustrations and illustrations on verso of wraps. Original printed blue wrappers, gilt, with NEBRASKA printed in gilt on front wrapper and an illustration of the Liberty Bell on the rear wrapper. This Nebraska promotional was issued for the 1876 Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia. The illustrations include views of vast Nebraska lands, as well as a birds-eye view of the Centennial Exposition buildings in Philadelphia's Fairmount Park and a view of the exposition's Agricultural Building. The text gives an account of the progress of the state, statistics to bolster its claims of potential growth, and touts its suitability for agriculture and livestock.

[Nebraska] D. Lowman and Son. A Partial List of Wild Lands for Sale ... Hastings Avenue, Hastings, Nebraska. Hastings: Democrat Book and Job Office, (ca. 1880, not before 1878 or after 1886). 4-page leaflet, 23 x 16.5 cm. Includes lands in 7 counties: Adams, Kearney, Clay, Webster, Nuckolls, Thayer, and Hamilton, giving location; section; town; acreage; price, and terms for some 150 parcels. The firm operated under this name from 1878 to 1886, after which William M. Lowman took over his father's firm and changed its name. (Who's Who in Nebraska. Lincoln, Neb., 1940). No Hastings, Neb. imprint with "Democrat Book and Job Office" found in OCLC, which lists a number of "Democrat Printing House" imprints, the earliest 1886, most of them much later.

[New Mexico] Folsom Springs Town Improvement Co. *Folsom! Folsom, the Beautiful! Folsom, the Charming! Folsom, the Delightful! The Health Giving! The Life Preserving! Capulin! The Grand! [Publishing] [Microbooks] Micro Information Concepts. Dallas: Micro Information, (c. 1985). In the mid 1980s, Micro Information Concepts launched "Unknown Worlds," a publishing venture dedicated to issuing difficult-to-find science fiction periodicals on microfiche, for home use. Astounding Stories, Analog Science Fiction, Fantasy and Science Fiction, and Unknown were offered on microfiche, "the paperback of the future." "What can beat 641 issues, 54 years, of Astounding/Analog, that can be held in one hand, last for more than 100 years and cost less than $1.42 each with the reader included?" The "reader" described here is a 12-pound "475" model for home viewing of the books of the future; although another flyer included here offers the compact 2 lb. "Fichette" for $140. Enclosed with the promotional material is a sample copy (microfiche numbers 1 and 2 of 78 total) of the first issue of Unknown magazine, March 1939. Original envelope included, which is sunned; all other items (promotional materials, microfiche) fine. A glimpse of the imagined future of publishing from 30 years ago. Quirky technological ephemera.

[Railroads] Allen Paper Car Wheel Co. Descriptive circular and price list, 1882. New York: Allen Paper Car Wheel Co., 1882. 32 pp. Illustrated.

[Railroads] Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R.R. Santa Fe Route. Chicago: Rand McNally, March 1894. 24 panels. Timetables, routes, maps.

[Railroads] Atlantic Coast Line. Annual Reports, 1915-1925.

[Railroads] Brewster, Benjamin Harris. Address of Hon. Benjamin Harris Brewster, at a meeting of excursionists, held June 7th, 1867, near Fort Harker, Kansas, at the western end of the track of the Union Pacific Railway (E.D.). Philadelphia: Review Print. House, 1867. 16 p.

[Railroads] Brigham, Fred. A. Flagg's Railway Safety Gate. Central Falls: E.L. Freeman & Co., printers to the state, 1884. 24 pp.; ill. "All the patents on the railway safety gate for the United States, Canada and Great Britain are owned and controlled by Fred. A. Brigham, Riverside, R.I., to whom all communications should be addressed." Includes testimonials and "Extracts from letters patent."

[Railroads] Chestnut and Walnut Street Railway: A Consideration of the Subject of the Central Passenger Railway, Being a Railway for Passengers Only, Proposed to the Run from Second to Twenty-Third Street, via Walnut and Chestnut Streets, in the City of Philadelphia. Philadelphia: W.B. Zieber, 1858. Original printed wrappers, stitched. 94, [1], [1 blank] pp. The inner wrappers print reports and articles advocating the passenger railway. Philadelphia's once-"conspicuous ascendancy over all the cities of America is gradually, but palpably, passing away." The city's salvation depends on "energy, activity, and indomitable enterprise." The proposed railway is the best means of sweeping away the "palsy" that has afflicted Philadelphia. The pamphlet sets forth the reasons for its construction, and rebuts opposing arguments.

[Railroads] Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad Company. Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad contractors' department payroll of men employed. 1858-1859. 1 volume. Mixed Material. This payroll ledger for Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad lists employees' total work days, pay rate, work for cutting wood, hauling fir, laying and repairing track, board bills, and work on bridges from April 1858-January 1959. Purchase, 2014.

[Railroads] Scioto Valley Railway Company. Corporate History: The Scioto Valley Railway Company, The Scioto Valley and New England Railroad Company. Philadelphia: Allen, Lane & Scott, printers, [approximately 1890]. 74 pp. Cover title.

[Railroads] Sheffield & Savannah. Wheaton, W.G.: Report upon the Preliminary Survey of the First Two Divisions of the Sheffield & Savannah Railroad: with a Map Showing Its Connections. Rock Island: From T.R. Raymond's Printing House, 1856. Original printed wrappers, later stitching. 15, [1 blank] pp, plus large folding map showing the route of the Railroad and other railroads traversing Illinois.

Sheffield and Savannah are both in Illinois. Wheaton's Report describes the route's topography and contours, and explains the commercial and agricultural opportunities thus rendered available. Illinois's "resources [are] almost boundless. She is yet in her infancy--scarcely a tithe of her riches are known. She has many Railroads, and many projected routes; some I will grant not well conceived-- but many roads yet remain to be built, which will not only pay well as an investment, but which must be built to develop [sic] the country." Tables are included, showing the 'Estimated Cost of Graduation, Masonry and Bridging.' The 1854 Act is printed, authorizing the Chicago and Rock Island Railroad Company "to construct a branch of its road from Sheffield, by way of Prophetstown, to a point on the Mississippi river at or near Savannah." 168 Eberstadt 232. Not in Byrd, Sabin, Modelski.

[Railroads] Texas and Pacific Railway Co. Fourth Annual Report ... August 10th, 1875. Philadelphia: Review Printing House, 1875. 46 pp.

[Railroads] [Texas] Southern Pacific Railroad: letter of Hon. T. Butler King, with a map, illustrating the course of trade between Europe and Asia, over the continent of America. Cincinnati: T. Wrightson & Co., printers and publishers, [1855]

[Sales] "Selling America": pointers on selling out of the autobiography of Ben Franklin adapted from a Jam Handy picture. Dayton, Ohio: Reynolds and Reynolds Co., c1938. 23 pp.

[Sample Books] Nashua Mfg. Co. Your Color & Why [cover title]. Nashua, NH, 1924. 12mo. 16pp + color pictorial wrappers. Color illustrations throughout; actual fabric sample tipped to inside front wrapper. Brochure advertising Indian Head fabrics to the style-conscious woman. OCLC notes a copy at the American Textile Museum.

[Science] Proceedings of the Iowa Academy of Sciences 1875-1880. Iowa City: Printed by John P. Irish, 1880. 28 pp.

[Sermons] Bedell, G.T. Railroad Sermon. The Way of Righteousness. New York: International Committee of the Young Mens Christian Associations, 1880. 39 pp. "Preached by special request before the Railroad Men's Christian Association of Cleveland, Ohio. Repeated before the Railroad Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association of the City of New York."

South Dakota. Superintendent of Public Instruction. First Biennial Report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. State of South Dakota. 1892. Pierre: Carter Publishing, 1892. 156 pp. Illustrations.

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Almanaque ilustrado de la Prensa, San Antonio: Lozano, 1929. Great almanac, notable for the profusion of advertisement by San Antonio businesses, many of which are printed on colored paper interspersed with the newsprint used for most of the text. Front wraps has fantastic illustration of a sinking ship (representing 1928) and an airplane dropping roses (representing 1929), signed by R Munguía. The artist is undoubtedly one of the Munguía family who came to San Antonio during the Mexican Revolution and eventually established their own printing house, Artes Gráficas (see next title).

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Miguel Álvarez Acosta, Hidalgo (Intento Biográfico), San Antonio: Artes Gráficas, 1939. Álvarez Acosta was a Mexican Consul in San Antonio, and this is the text of a speech he delivered to commemorate the Grito de Dolores, in which Father Hidalgo declared independence from Spain. I quote from his prologue (my translation): "This modest work is directed to the Mexicans who live in Texas, it is and should be simple, clear, and explanatory. I am not creating great literature but will limit myself to saying that I was taught by the most famous historians of Mexico."

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Anonymous, La verdad sobre la muerte de Carranza, San Antonio: Librería de Quiroga, 1921. A great popular pamphlet informing the Mexican community about the assassination of Carranza. (Judging by the cover, a bunch of armed men approached the grass hut in which he was resting and fired into it.) This is very typical of the types of pamphlets being published in Mexico, bringing people up to date about political happenings back home, often in lurid detail.

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Anonymous, Galería de mártires mexicanos, narraciones verídicas, San Antonio: Imprenta Universal, n.d. [ca. 1928]. This is the sublime photographic account of martyrs of the Cristero Revolt, chock full of photographs. Most depict the martyrs during life, but a tantalizing minority show executions, dead bodies, and mourning relatives. Brief accounts of their tragedies accompany the photos. The cover has an extremely weird design: a figure of Christ appearing before a column (perhaps the Angel of Independence, erected on La Reforma in Mexico City in 1910?), with the words “Sanguis Martyrum Semen” superimposed in the sky.

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Anonymous, La rebelión militar contra el gobierno legítimo del Sr. Presidente de la República Lic. D. Emilio Portes Gil, descrita y comentada por un observador, San Antonio: Talleres La Época, 1930. A political tract concerning the military uprising against the “legitimate” president, which places this book squarely in the tradition of books that were published in San Antonio because they were too hot to print in Mexico.

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Anonymous, Inglés sin maestro, método práctico para aprender en veinte lecciones el idioma inglés, con la pronunciación figurada en castellano. San Antonio: Lozano, 1924 (this is the 8th printing--copyright is 1916). A self-teaching course in English. Front wrap has an incredible multi-color typographic design. This is one of those paradoxical books that went through many printings but which has barely survived: just three holdings in OCLC.

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Anonymous, El perfecto secretario mexicano, San Antonio: Lozano, 1924 (6th Printing, copyright is 1915). A book with sample letters for all occasions: very 19th Century! Ditto comment above re current scarcity in spite of great popularity upon publication: only four holdings in OCLC.

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Lic. Antonio Castellanos, Anales del crimen: El automóvil gris, narración histórica de esta célebre banda, tiempos de la revolución carrancista, San Antonio: Antonio Castellanos, 1922. An absolutely fabulous piece of popular culture, recounting by the true life tales of a group of bandits (the Grey Car Gang, known for their getaway car) who operated in Mexico City between 1914 and 1919, but written and published in San Antonio. There is also a wonderful film connection: stills from a movie about this gang appear on the front wrap and throughout the book. I believe they are from the Enrique Rosas film about this gang, which came out in 1919 and was one of the most famous silent films produced in Mexico. (Rosas also filmed the execution of ten members of the gang!). There are more attractions to the book besides the photo stills: a Posada print of a skull on the title page, funky borders surrounding all the text, and ads for local restaurants, hotels and funeral homes (!). In addition to having a law degree (thus the title of “Lic[enciado]”), Castellanos worked as a journalist for the Spanish language press in San Antonio, and it was on this beat that he wrote a wonderful account of the San Antonio flood of 1921, published by the Librería de Quiroga.

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] José Elizondo, Cosas bellas en palabras ingenuas, 1926. Original prose and verse by Elizondo, the uncle of publisher Ignacio Lozano. Introduction by Nemesio García Naranjo, a Mexican intellectual who spent many years in exile in San Antonio. The foreword by Elizondo indicates that this was a private edition and refers to the “escaso número de ejemplares,” ie small number of copies. Numerous illustrations by Jose Antonio Audirac. OCLC lists three holdings.

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Querido Moheno, Cosas de Tío Sam, San Antonio: Talleres Tipográficos de la Revista Mexicana, 1916. Moheno was a renowned Mexican orator and politician; he served as Secretary of Foreign Affairs from 1913 to 1914. This is a record of his impressions of a visit to the United States, via a series of letters written to his aunt. He did not like what he saw; a 1975 article in the Southwestern Historical Quarterly as referred to the text as containing “typical examples of Yankee phobia.” The front wrap has a great illustration (signed Viguet) of a ghostly Washington remonstrating a petulant Uncle Sam.

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Juan de Dios Peza, Devocionario de mis nietos, San Antonio: Lozano, 1930. A volume of prayers in verse by Peza, intended to teach his grandchildren how to pray. The author died in 1910, but this book suggests that this is the first appearance of these poems.

[Spanish-Language Imprints from San Antonio] Cristobal Schmidt, Genoveva de Brabante, San Antonio: Lozano, 1924 (novísima edición: not clear if this means a subsequent printing from Lozano, or that this book was previously printed by other publishers). This is an interesting title due to its European origin: Genevieve of Brabant was a famous figure of popular German literature who was subject of a number of dramas from the Romantic period. Per the story, she was a noblewoman who was falsely accused of adultery, spent six years as a hermit in a cave with her son until her husband decided she had been telling the truth and came to rescue her.

This particular version was first published in Augsburg in 1825 and was translated and disseminated widely throughout Europe, and eventually Mexico (and Texas!). OCLC lists 3 holdings.

[Texas] Conner, John C. (John Coggsell), 1842-1873, author. John C. Conner and H.D. McDonald correspondence. [United States], 1870-1872.

1 folder

John C. Conner represented Texas as a Democrat in the United States Forty-first and Forty-second Congress (1870-1873). John Conner writes to his friend H.D. McDonald in Paris, Texas, about the Democratic convention in Dallas and politics. Letters are written on Conner's congressional letterhead. Included are railroad passes, two broadsides of Conner's addresses, two copies of a letter by McDonald to The National Intelligencer, and an advertisement for the The National Intelligencer. Part of the George W. Cook Dallas/Texas image collection.

[Texas] Cozart, Henderson, author. Receipt for tools used at Goliad endorsed by James Fannin. Goliad, 1836 February 18. 1 page.

This receipt written by Assistant Quartermaster Henderson Cozart lists several tools in various states of usefulness that Major Michael Riley made available while stationed at Goliad in order to fortify the garrison. J.W. Fannin Jr. endorsed the receipt at the bottom of the page with quartermaster David Holt. The document was written the month before Fannin was executed at Goliad. Part of the George W. Cook Dallas/Texas image collection.

[Texas] Graber family, collector. Graber family collection of Terry's Texas Rangers materials. [Texas], 1882-1945. 4 folders. Mixed Material
This collection contains an 1882 printed volume of Terry's Texas Rangers annotated muster roll with a signed register of all veterans who attended the 1902 reunion; three uniform buttons; photographs of the H.W. Graber family; and correspondence. Benjamin Franklin Terry formed the Eighth Texas Cavalry during the Civil War, and it was known as one of the best units from Texas in the Confederate army. H.W. Graber served in this unit and later wrote his autobiography that detailed his time as a Terry Texas Ranger. Graber (1841-1917) was born in Bremen, Germany, and immigrated to Houston, Texas, in 1853. He moved to Dallas in 1885, and hosted the 1902 reunion of Terry's Texas Rangers in Dallas. Included in this collection are a photograph and military record of his grandson, Graber Kidwell, who served in World War II; correspondence of Lessie Kidwell; and pamphlets. Part of the George W. Cook Dallas/Texas image collection.

[Texas] Proposed Treaty with Texas, a Gross Usurpation of Power: The Annexation of Louisiana, a Precedent against the Constitutionality of the Treaty with Texas. Inconsistency of the Strict Constructionists, Who Favour that Treaty. Opinions of Jefferson. If the Enumeration of Slaves Be a Fundamental Condition Which Cannot be Abolished without Consent of One Party; Without the Consent of the Other, It Cannot be Extended to Another Nation. Philadelphia: 1844. 8pp. The author-- who has signed this at the end, 'A Washington Federalist'-- argues that Southern 'strict constructionists' are unprincipled hypocrites: like Jefferson, they called the Bank of the United States unconstitutional because the power to create it was not explicitly granted by the Constitution. On similar grounds they also believed purchasing Louisiana was unconstitutional. Now, however, they call the Louisiana acquisition "a precedent justifying the usurpation of power which is contemplated in relation to Texas. In law, does acquiescence in one beneficial illegality justify another which is injurious?" Even if acquisition of Louisiana, and then Florida, were a "paramount expediency," "what is there to be gained by a union with Texas? Is it an object to have our frontier in the vicinity of the Mexicans and Camanches?" The "consequent extension of slave representation" is reason enough to deny admission to Texas. First Edition. Streeter 1527A. 162 Eberstadt 856. Cohen 10857.

[Texas] Smith, Edward J., and Harry M. Pease. Texas Spring Palace City Fort Worth. A Parody on H.M.S. Pinafore. [Fort Worth]: Texas Spring Palace, 1889. iv,50,[v]-xiv pp., including illustrations and advertisements. Original pictorial front wrapper, rear wrapper lacking. "The Texas Spring Palace, a regional immigration and agricultural fair located in Fort Worth, opened on May 29, 1889. The fair was inspired by an idea of Robert A. Cameron, immigration agent for the Fort Worth and Denver Railway, and designed to attract settlers and investors to Texas" - Handbook of Texas. Taking its inspiration from Sioux City's Corn Palace and Toronto's Ice Palace, the Spring Palace City highlighted the natural products of the state, and counties throughout Texas contributed to the exhibits. The Palace drew thousands of visitors to Fort Worth and helped boost the local economy before it was consumed by flames in May, 1890. The text of this parody by Edward J. Smith, taking Gilbert & Sullivan's wildly popular H.M.S. Pinafore as an inspiration, mocks the excessive boosterism of the Texans, complemented by illustrations by Harry M. Pease. Other illustrations show prominent Fort Worth buildings, including the Board of Trade and the Fort Worth Iron Works. Handbook of Texas (online).

[Trade Catalogues] [Cloth] Simplex Sampling Association. Simplex Buyer's Guide of Standard Merchandize. New York, 1919. Folio. 36ff + embossed wrappers. Amazing sample piece from a firm that represented a number of firms that made cloth goods—dresses, pillow cases, robes, as well as lines of cotton clothes, crepes, etc. Recto of each leaf is an advertisement, of sorts, for a specific line, with samples of cloth (or finished products such as towels), and usually on the verso an actual tipped-on sample (total of 45 real samples). The embossing “samples” of fabrics— in a variety of colors, patterns, and textures—appears almost real. Fine reference and display piece. OCLC—which classifies this as a serial—notes five holdings. Two have single dated issues (Cincinnati Public, 1926; Virginia, 1923); Philadelphia Univ. has undated entry; American History Textile Museum owns three issues (1923, 1924, 1925).

[Travel] Montgomery, Cora [i.e. Cazneau, Jane]: The Kind of Rivers, with a Chart of Our Slave and Free Soil Territory. New York: Charles Wood, 1850. 19pp., including a single-page map. Cora Montgomery was the pseudonym of the fascinating Jane Cazneau, Texas pioneer and promoter, journalist, and the author of Eagle Pass and Texas and her Presidents. Very active in public affairs (not just as the alleged mistress of Aaron Burr), she also supported the annexation of Cuba and the plots of William Walker in Nicaragua. In this work she describes her voyages down the Mississippi, includes a substantial section on Louisiana and New Orleans, and gives her views on slavery and national expansion. Cazneau predicted the gradual abolition of slavery as cheap foreign labor made it economically disadvantageous. This essay was planned to be part of a book called Our Mother Land, though that work was never published. The Democratic Republican Young Men's General Committee ordered this essay to be printed in 5000 copies. It is sometimes found as part of another work, called The Queen of Islands ..., published the same year (see Clark). Sabin 50133. Clark, Old South III:366 (note).

[Women] Anonymous. Diary. Galveston, Texas, 1858 April 17-1858 May 5. [64 pp.] Apparently kept by a woman visiting Galveston from Palacios? Frequent mention of "Mr. Gotthiel," identified at one point in the diary as an architect. Possibly Edward Gotthiel, a German emigrant known for his work in New Orleans. The anonymous woman diarist reveals that her father, recently deceased, was a ship captain. She mentions the last time she saw him at Powder Horn wharf along the Texas coast. Might be possible, with further research, to identify the diarist. Much religious introspection here as well as accounts of her daily activities; mention of a "daguerrian saloon." Frequent expressions of guilt and regret concerning her father's death.

[Women] Anonymous. Washington D.C. social diary. [Washington D.C.], 1907-1909.1 diary. This anonymous social diary of a wife from Washington, D.C., describes the various dinners and luncheons she and her husband Herman attended. Guests included diplomats, titled foreigners, and cabinet members. After the election of William Howard Taft, she and her husband dined at the White House with the Roosevelts. She had a "sympathetic talk with Mrs. Roosevelt, also with the President. Saw them in the intimacy of home life. Quite alone."

Appeal from the District Court of Bosque County. Brief for Appellant. N. J. Wade, Attorney for Appellant, Mary A. P. Blethen.* Meridian, Texas: Bosque Eagle Print, [circa 1897]. 28 pp. "Statement of the Nature and Result of the Suit: Mary A. P. Blethen, appellant, sued the appellees, W. A. Bonner et al, in trespass to try title to 1428 and one-tenth acres of land described in her petition filed July 29th, 1897. In addition to the statutory allegations of trespass to try title, she alleged that she had formerly been the wife of the appellee, L. B. Blethen; that they were married in Massachusetts in 1863 and were divorced in Texas in 1880; that her separate property was reserved to her by an ante-nuptial contract made in Massachusetts October 1st, 1863..." Signed in pencil, by N. J. Wade, on front cover.

[Women] Swanson, Emily. Letters from Emily Swanson to her husband Glenn Swanson. Amarillo, Texas, 1919-1932, bulk 1931-1932. 23 letters.

This collection contains typescript letters from Emily to her husband [Frederick] Glenn Swanson from September 1931 to May 1932. These letters are written on Morgan, Culton, Morgan & Britain letterhead, and describe Em's life working in the law firm and her social activities in Amarillo, Texas. Frederick Glenn Swanson was involved in building the Panama Canal and later was elected to serve two terms in the Texas Legislature from 1945 to 1947. These letters are all addressed "Dear Glenn" and are signed "Love Em," most likely Swanson's wife Emily. It appears that Glenn was recuperating from an injury in Tyler, Texas and Em sent him candy, magazines, and letters. Also included is one letter on J.H. Young Lumber Company letterhead dated June 12, 1919 in Warren, Pennsylvania. This is one of the collections in the Archives of Women of the Southwest.

[Women] Tumlinson, Elizabeth. Articles of agreement between Elizabeth Tumlinson and George Foley. [Texas], 1828 February 14. 1 page.

This handwritten document states that Elizabeth Tumlinson is to furnish board, lodging, team, and everything necessary for farming. George Foley is to farm until corn is hoed over once, crib the corn, and start a garden with the help of Elizabeth's husband, Joseph. All three people signed the document, which was made in "Austin's Colony District of Colorado." Elizabeth Tumlinson was the first woman Texas rancher and the only woman to receive a land grant from Stephen F. Austin.
