Dallas, Texas—SMU’s Perkins School of Theology has announced that Dr. Luis Rivera-Pagan, Henry White Luce Emeritus Professor of Ecumenics at Princeton Theological Seminary, will be at Perkins as visiting professor from Monday, March 31, through Friday, April 11, 2008. His visit is sponsored by the Center for the Study of Latino/a Christianity and Religions and is made possible by a program grant to the Center from the Henry Luce Foundation.

“After an absence of a decade, I look forward to collaborating with Perkins’ Latino/Hispanic theological program. Perkins School of Theology is an institution I deeply respect, appreciate, and care for,” says Rivera-Pagan. He will be engaged in various scholarly activities at Perkins and on the SMU campus. Here are a few of the highlights of his visit.

- Tuesday, April 1, at 6:30 p.m. he will participate in the Center’s “Interdisciplinary Dialogue” in Kirby Parlor.
- Monday, April 7, he will give a Public Lecture in Perkins Chapel at 7:00 p.m.
- Wednesday, April 9, at 11:30 a.m. he will be preaching in Perkins Chapel during the service remembering Archbishop Oscar Romero.
- He will be available for conversation when he is not participating in an event.

Dr. Rivera-Pagan served as the Henry Winters Professor of Ecumenics at Princeton from 2001-2007, and as the John A. Mackay Professor of World Christianity at Princeton during 1999-2000. Prior to that he served as Professor of Humanities at the University of Puerto Rico 1986-2001. Rivera-Pagan earned his Ph.D. from Yale University in 1970 and is a long-time friend of Perkins, having participated in various events and made contributions to Apuntes, a journal of theological reflections from a Hispanic-Latino context.

The Center for the Study of Latino/a Christianity and Religions addresses topics and issues related to the Latino/a religious experience within a broader ecumenical and religious context, as well as attention to international dynamics and realities. In fostering and supporting innovative research projects by both younger and established scholars, the Center contributes to the growth of knowledge concerning Latino religion and religiosity. Through consultations, seminars, public events, and publications in a wide range of formats, the Center disseminates the results of new ventures in scholarship in these areas and the insights gained through this work in ways that will be of value to the churches, the academy, and the wider society.

Dr. Rivera-Pagan’s scholarly publications include 16 volumes and more than 100 articles in English and Spanish. Many of his works have been translated to French, German, Italian, and Portuguese.
