Conduct.—The University authorities expect students to maintain a high standard of scholarship, of character, and of consideration for others. A student whose conduct or influence is found to be detrimental to the best interests of the student body may be requested to withdraw.

Drinking or possession of intoxicants on campus, gambling, hazing, dishonesty, immoral conduct, and any other behavior unbecoming to a student of Southern Methodist University render the student liable to disciplinary action. In addition, it should be remembered that even off campus a student's conduct may be a direct reflection on the University and, therefore, he should conduct himself in a responsible manner at all times. Flagrant misconduct or continued violation of the rules and regulations will merit suspension or expulsion, as determined by The Faculty Committee on Discipline.

Each student agrees to leave the University and University neighborhood quietly and immediately when for reason he is directed to do so by a constituted disciplinary authority of the University. Such student is expected not to return to campus except for official school business during the period of ban.

The Deans of Men and Women are charged with the administration and enforcement of policies established by The Faculty Committee on Discipline.

The faculty welcomes the hearty cooperation of the Students' Association in the maintenance of high standards, and relies upon student sentiment and leadership in student self-government to support good conduct. Campus life is enhanced by student participation on several faculty and administrative committees.

Church Attendance.—All students are urged to attend divine worship each Sunday in the church of their choice.

Loss of Personal Property.—The University is not responsible for the loss of personal property belonging to students in any building owned by the University, whether the loss results from theft, fire, or unknown cause.
