

Jennifer Schultz

serves as the Senior Vice President General Counsel at Randa Apparel & Accessories (Randa), a global leader in apparel and accessories with a portfolio of over 30 iconic brands. She plays a crucial role in navigating complex legal landscapes and developing risk mitigation strategies that support the company's global operations and strategic growth. Her expertise spans operational and IT security, e-commerce and data privacy, supply chain due diligence, product traceability, intellectual property, regulatory compliance, sustainability initiatives, consumer marketing, and employment law. Jennifer's leadership has been instrumental in driving Randa's success, particularly through acquisitions that reinforce the company's market leadership.

A graduate of Southern Methodist University Dedman School of Law, Jennifer earned her J.D., cum laude, in 2001, serving as Notes and Articles Editor for the Computer Law Review & Technology Journal. She also holds a B.A. in Journalism, cum laude, from the University of Montana.

In 2023, Jennifer was honored with the prestigious D CEO Corporate Counsel Award for Outstanding Deputy General Counsel/Associate General Counsel, recognizing her exceptional contributions to the legal profession.

Jennifer's career reflects her deep commitment to the creative industries, highlighted by her co-founding of the Fashion, Art & Literature practice group at Kane Russell Coleman & Logan PC. She has represented an impressive roster of clients, including Project Runway alumni, wearable technology innovators, and globally recognized designers. Jennifer has built a reputation as a trusted advisor and advocate, bringing her purpose of leadership with style, grace, and a sense of humor to every engagement.