RESEARCH INTERESTS

My primary research interest involves exploring psychological and environmental variables affecting consumer behavior within sport marketing and sport tourism. Pursuant to this interest, my research has focused on examining how service quality, motivation, perceived value, value co-creation, constraints, destination image, and attachment interact with decision-making strategies to influence sport consumer behavior in various contexts, including domestic professional sport, global sport, collegiate sport, and disability sport. My secondary research interest involves the expansion of my expertise in research design, measurement, and statistics. This line of research includes multi-disciplinary contributions to the advancement of quantitative methods in sport management.
