RETIRING FACULTY

JAMES E. BROOKS

James E. Brooks has served as a faculty member in the Department of Geological Sciences at SMU since 1952. A native of Indiana, Professor Brooks received his undergraduate degree in geology at DePauw University in 1948, his Master's degree from Northwestern University in 1950, and his doctorate at the University of Washington in 1954. Professor Brooks is president of SMU's Institute for the Study of Earth and Man (ISEM). His career at SMU is highlighted by a number of prestigious academic awards and by recognition from students and colleagues for his service as a teacher. Dr. Brooks' career in research is a study in the hard science, the art, the intricate diplomacy, and the romance that await earth scientists exploring the human and geological mysteries of North Africa's deserts. Since 1967, Professor Brooks' research has focused primarily on Egypt and Yemen. His studies explore the geologic and stratigraphic history and the geomorphology of Egypt and the stratigraphy and geoarchaeology of Yemen. It is in part through Professor Brooks' efforts that SMU has enjoyed a long and vibrant exchange of knowledge with Egyptian government officials and academicians, and has educated a number of Egyptian graduate students in the earth sciences and archaeological sciences. During his long and distinguished career at SMU, Professor Brooks has served in a number of critically important institutional roles, including chairman of the Department of Geological Sciences, dean of the faculties of Humanities and Sciences in what is now called Dedman College, provost and vice president for academic affairs from 1972 to 1980, and president ad interim in 1980-81. He will retire as professor emeritus of geology and provost emeritus.

JEFF D. CHALK, III

A native of Dallas and graduate of Sunset High School, Professor Chalk completed his B.A. and B.S. degrees in electrical engineering and an M.A. degree in physics at Rice University and received his Ph.D. in physics from the University of Colorado. He worked as a research associate at Rice University before joining the faculty of SMU's Department of Physics in 1965. He has shown his dedication as a member of this academic community through service on a multitude of committees, and the positions he has held over the decades include chairman ad interim of the Department of Physics, chief marshal of the University, secretary of the Faculty Senate, secretary of the Faculty Athletics Committee, and chairman of Division III of the School of Humanities and Sciences. For 20 years, he has served as a member of the Premedical Advisory Committee. Professor Chalk truly enjoyed the teaching of physics, and the list of courses he taught during his nearly 30 years at SMU spans the gamut from first-year introductory courses to advanced graduate-level offerings. To countless SMU students who have benefited from his classes and laboratories over the years, he has been "Mr. Physics" at SMU. Acknowledging his dedication to his students, his department, and his discipline, the University awarded to Professor Chalk last April the Willis M. Tate Distinguished Lecture Series Award for Excellence in Teaching and Faculty Service. The following month he again was honored for his many professional contributions by the Physics Association of North Texas. He retired January 1, 1995, as associate professor emeritus of physics.

E. DALE DAVIS

E. Dale Davis will have completed 36 years of distinguished service to the University community when he retires from the full-time faculty at the close of this academic year. After receiving his B.A. degree in English and religion from Wake Forest College, he completed Master of Education and Doctor of Education degrees in education administration and supervision at the University of North Carolina. While completing his graduate studies, he taught in public high schools, and served as a principal. Following the completion of his doctoral studies, he joined the faculty of SMU's Department of Education in 1959. He chaired the department from 1967 to 1970 and served as coordinator of the department's graduate programs from 1974 until 1983. In 1977 he was named director of the newly established Center for Teacher Preparation, a position which he has held since that time. During his tenure at SMU, Professor Davis served the University community in many ways, among them membership on the Faculty Senate, the Dean's Advisory Committee, the Graduate Council of Humanities and Sciences, and a term as secretary of the Faculty Senate. During his extensive career at SMU, he served as a member of the State Audit Committee of the Texas Education Agency, consulted with the Sherman, Tyler, and Nacogdoches public school systems concerning desegregation, directed numerous curriculum workshops for the Dallas, Garland, Mesquite, Plano, and Richardson school districts, and addressed scores of Parent-Teacher Associations in the North Texas region. He will retire as professor emeritus of education.

CHARLES T. EAGLE, JR.

Charles Eagle is retiring after 20 years as a member of the faculty of Southern Methodist University. He received his Bachelor of Music and Master of Music degrees from the University of Texas and his Ph.D. in Music Education and Music Therapy from the University of Kansas. After teaching at the University of Miami and Texas Woman's University, he joined the faculty of what is now Meadows School of the Arts in 1975. He became head of the Department of Music in 1977 and in 1985-86 served as chair ad interim of the Division of Music. Since 1986, he has been head of the Department of Music Therapy. On the national scene, Professor Eagle has served as secretary (1973-76), vice-president (1976-78), and president (1992) of the National Association for Music Therapy, and has chaired the association's Committee of the Sears Distinguished Lecture Series for many years. Internationally, he has been vice-president and a member of the Executive Board of the International Society for Music in Medicine since 1984 and was a charter member of the International Arts Medicine Association. At SMU, his contribution to the life of the University has included service on numerous committees in the Division of Music as well as membership on the Council on General Education and on the Faculty Senate's Committee on Ethics and Tenure. Professor Eagle's research has been concentrated in the area of music therapy for the handicapped and especially for handicapped children; and he is particularly well known as an editor of Music Psychology Index (vols. 1-3) and for his role in the development of the Computer-Assisted Information Retrieval System (CAIRSS) for Music. He will retire as professor emeritus of music therapy.

BACCALAUREATE PREACHER

DR. PATRICK HENRY

Religious historian Patrick Henry is executive director of the Institute for Ecumenical and Cultural Research in Collegeville, Minnesota. He has devoted his career and lifelong scholarship to finding ways to bridge the gap between the academic and lay worlds on ecclesiastical issues. The institute — through its emphasis on first-person discourse — encourages people to reconnect the intellectual and the spiritual, and to find and sustain coherence in communities of diversity. Before joining the institute in 1984, Dr. Henry served as a professor of religion at Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania from 1967 to 1984, as well as chair of the college's Division of Humanities and coordinator of medieval studies. Dr. Henry was reared in Dallas less than two miles from SMU. His father was pastor at Northway Christian Church from 1937 to 1977. He attended Harvard University, graduating magna cum laude with a B.A. degree in history and literature of England. He received B.A. and M.A. degrees in theology from Oxford University and a Ph.D. degree in the history of Christianity from Yale University. His numerous honors include membership in Phi Beta Kappa, as well as a Marshall Scholarship, Kent Fellowship, National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship, and listing in Who's Who in America. His books include New Directions in New Testament Study, God on Our Minds, Schools of Thought in the Christian Tradition, and For the Sake of the World: The Spirit of Buddhist and Christian Monasticism.

CONFERRING OF HONORARY DEGREES

GEORGE W. ARCHIBALD, Doctor of Science

George Archibald has devoted his professional life to the preservation of endangered species and the environment. Through his doctoral studies at Cornell University, he examined the comparative ethology of cranes and evolutionary relationships. A native of Canada, he continues his work as director of the U.S.-based International Crane Foundation (ICF), which he helped to organize 20 years ago to ensure the propagation of cranes in the wild. He established a "species bank" of captive cranes used successfully in breeding and has studied the ecology of several species of cranes in Australia, Asia, and North America. In 1993 the National Audubon Society recognized Archibald with its Distinguished Conservationist Award. For his accomplishments in ornithology, the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation presented him with the 1984 MacArthur Award. The National Wildlife Federation named the International Crane Foundation the 1988 "Organization of the Year." For his significant contributions aiding the survival of cranes and other creatures of the world's vanishing wetlands, and for his advancement of understanding of ecological issues, Southern Methodist University is honored to confer upon George W. Archibald the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa.

WILLIAM H. COSBY, JR., Doctor of Arts

As one of America's most successful and widely recognized entertainers, Bill Cosby is perhaps best known for his role as Dr. Huxtable, father and husband in one of America's most beloved television families. In this role and in many other ways, he has shown that humor can be an effective tool for bringing people together, and for communicating simple truths and strong values. He has written a number of books with humorous perspectives on family life and the issues of aging and is a successful businessman. Dr. Cosby earned a Master of Arts degree and a Doctor of Education degree from the University of Massachusetts, and he never has forgotten the impact of education on his life. He has contributed generous amounts of time and money to help educate and motivate the nation's youth. His contributions range from appearances on "Sesame Street" to a $20 million gift to Spelman College. Forbes magazine has aptly described Dr. Cosby as a "humanely humorous genius." For his significant achievements and insights opening hearts and minds to the issues of humanity, and for his generosity on behalf of higher education, Southern Methodist University is honored to confer upon William H. Cosby, Jr. the degree of Doctor of Arts, honoris causa.

WILLIAM B. JORDAN, Doctor of Humane Letters

Because of William B. Jordan's discerning eye and deep commitment to art, the Meadows Museum of Southern Methodist University contains one of the most comprehensive permanent collections of Spanish art outside of Spain. With the support of philanthropist Algur H. Meadows, Dr. Jordan built a collection that includes masterpieces by Goya, Velasquez, Picasso, Miro, and numerous others. Art historians internationally have acknowledged the quality of his aesthetic judgments, and the Spanish government and royalty have honored his achievements with numerous awards and titles. He earned a doctorate in art history at the Institute of Fine Arts in New York and has published widely in his field. As founding director of the Meadows Museum, he assembled a collection that serves not only as a lasting legacy to artistic talent, but also as a unique teaching tool for students, scholars, connoisseurs, and visitors from the University community and throughout the world. For his contributions to the world of art, and for the enrichment he has brought to the campus and to the city of Dallas, Southern Methodist University is honored to confer upon William B. Jordan the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

JACK ST. CLAIR KILBY, Doctor of Science

Jack St. Clair Kilby is among a handful of living persons whose insights and achievements have changed the world. At the age of 34, while working at Texas Instruments, he invented the microchip, or monolithic integrated circuit. This breakthrough laid the conceptual and technical foundation for the entire field of modern microelectronics and made possible the high-speed computers and large-capacity semiconductor memories of today's information age. In addition, he holds more than 60 U.S. patents. He has received numerous honors, including the National Medal of Science, selection to the National Inventors Hall of Fame, and the Kyoto Prize for Advanced Technology. From 1978 to 1984, he was Distinguished Professor of Electrical Engineering at Texas A&M University. He continues to guide the advancement of technology as a consultant to government and industry. Texas Instruments co-founder J. Erik Jonsson has said, "There is no way to see the end of Jack Kilby's impact through the invention of the microchip." For his creative genius, opening endless new possibilities for humanity through technology, Southern Methodist University is honored to confer upon Jack St. Clair Kilby the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa.

CEREMONIAL BANNERS

The University's new ceremonial banners will be used for the first time in honor of the graduating Class of 1995. These banners were designed by Robert B. Chambers, associate professor of stage design, Meadows School of the Arts, and fabricated by Mamie Chambers. The banners bear heraldic designs with the color of trim identifying each school and group ushered this morning.

THE ACADEMIC PROCESSION

The academic procession and the regalia worn by the faculty and officers of the University symbolically represent the continuing link between the modern American university and the founding of the great medieval universities in Europe — chief among them Bologna, Paris, and Oxford. As those institutions were derived from the Catholic Church, the universities adopted many of the ceremonial trappings of the church in their official public functions.

The mace of the University, a symbol of the authority vested in the president by the Board of Trustees and representing the covenant between the president and the faculty, is borne by the president of the Faculty Senate, elected by representatives of all faculties (this year, Professor Ronald K. Wetherington of the Anthropology Department). Though the order of the procession varies from university to university, at Southern Methodist University it proceeds from the chief marshal through the ranks of the faculty and the officers of the University, to the president, who is preceded by the mace-bearer. At Commencement, the candidates for graduation precede the faculty.

The caps and gowns worn in the procession also vary from place to place. There are variations in design to indicate the degrees held by the wearers, and many universities in America have introduced colorful gowns and other distinguishing details (in place of the customary clerical black from which all originated). The bachelor's gown is a simple robe falling in straight lines from an elaborate yoke. Its distinguishing characteristic is the long pointed sleeves. Master's gowns are arranged so that the arm emerges from a long sleeve through a slit at the wrist (replacing a former slit at the elbow). In most cases, the doctor's gown is marked by velvet panels down the front and around the neck, and by three bars of the same material on the bell-shaped sleeves. It is cut much fuller than the other gowns, and may be ornamented in color. Faculty colors are occasionally seen in the sleeve bars and paneling.

The caps, too, vary according to the customs of the university from which the wearer received a degree. While most American universities adopted the "mortarboard" style of Oxford, others have chosen styles based on other European institutions. The color of the tassel worn with the cap may be black for any degree; or, the color may be that of the faculty of the major field of learning (e.g. Arts, Engineering, Law, etc.). Persons holding doctoral degrees and governing officials of institutions are entitled to wear tassels of gold metallic thread. Such tassels are usually sewn in place. It is common practice, although not universal, that a ceremony is made of moving the tassel from the right side to the left of the cap at the moment the degree is awarded.

Within the great varieties of styles and colors in gowns and caps, there has been one universally accepted code for the hood worn trailing down the wearer's back. Originally, it was like the hood on the habit worn by monks — and very useful, for protection against the weather and even for begging for alms. Nowadays, the hood through length and color shows the degree and the specialization of the wearer, and the university that granted the degree. The Bachelor's, Master's, and Doctor's hoods are 3 feet, 3½ feet, and 4 feet long, respectively. The velvet trimming in the same order is 2, 3, and 5 inches wide. The color of the trim identifies the faculty. A partial list of faculty colors follows:

Arts, Letters, Humanities	White	Music	Pink
Business	Drab	Philosophy	Dark Blue
Engineering	Orange	Science	Golden Yellow
Fine Arts	Brown	Theology	Scarlet
Law	Purple

The lining of the hood — that portion most visible from the rear — indicates the institution awarding the degree. SMU's hood lining, for example, is blue with a red chevron.

Through these colorful ceremonies, SMU symbolically displays the continuity of its educational purposes with the origins of organized learning in the Western world.
