2014 IMPACT Lecture Series

Happiness

What makes you smile?

The social science of happiness is often said to have started in 1984, when psychologist Ed Diener published his landmark article on subjective well-being in Psychological Bulletin. Since then, thirty years of happiness science has left its mark on disciplines ranging from neuroscience to law, philosophy, history and English.

The Happiness Symposium will explore the implications and challenges of happiness research today in the topics of Philosophy, Economics, Business Law, English, Social History, Neuroscience, and Psychology.

Lecture Lineup

Thursday, September 11, 2014 Dan Haybron, Associate Professor of Philosophy, Saint Louis University

Friday, September 19, 2014

Peter Huang, Professor and DeMuth Chair of Business Law, University of Colorado Law School

Thursday, September 25, 2014

Mary Esteve, Associate Professor of English, Concordia University

Thursday, October 2, 2014

Kent Berridge, James Olds Collegiate Professor of Psychology and Neuroscience, University of Michigan

For more information

www.smu.edu/dedman/dcii